

Save the Frogs 2012

The spring migration period has just begun, which means that we must help the amphibians again. As you know, their migration route is intersected by the busy road leading to Zalesie. Frogs are the most rapidly disappearing animals on the planet. They are particularly vulnerable to become roadkill.

Our volunteers have put up special nets along the road and behind them buckets have been sunk into the ground. Now frogs which fall into the buckets are being carried to the other side of the road. In this way, hundreds of animals are saved each year.

Just think: nearly one-third of the world's amphibian species is on the verge of extinction.

Without our help the local toad population could become extinct!
